Membership should be a key part of any business plan where the defense and government transportation, travel, and logistics system is the target market.

When you join NDTA as a corporate member, your company's executives will have the opportunity to share ideas with top military, government, and industry officials at NDTA events. These events are conducted and attended by high-level military decision-makers, defense and other government officials, and industry leaders—the individuals who are setting and influencing the transportation, travel, and logistics agenda for the future.
